

No Child Left Behind

Two of our best and brightest stepped up to represent MedReach in our continued community outreach efforts. Jack Novak and Oscar Guardado recently participated in career day at Broadacres Elementary School in Carson. The goal was to expose our youth to professionals in the workforce, open their eyes to what their futures could be and give them something to strive toward. The program was also represented by other local EMS and law enforcement personnel. Jack and Oscar did an outstanding job talking with the kids about how EMTs and Paramedics help people and how rewarding a career taking care of sick and injured folks is for those who choose to do what we do every day. The kids were worked up and excited to see all the men and women who help the community and gave a big round of applause. Our guys also got a chance to rub elbows and hang out briefly with the Mayor of the City of Carson, Jim Dear....and get in a photo op. The Mayor thanked them for their participation and stated how important it is to reach and make an impression early on our young folks. Jack and Oscar demonstrated how important it is to lead by example and looked sharp doing so. We appreciate you guys being that sharp example for MedReach. Thanks again fellas!
